07 DECISION-MAKERS & YOUNG PEOPLE WHO DRIVE

Purpose of the tool

To help make the path shorter between young people in environments that are rarely listened to and decision-makers with power. The decision-makers are committed to collecting answers from groups of young people it concerns, when they are going to make decisions that affect them. The answers will rarely be representative, but can be important answers from groups of young people with an interest in different vehicles and who may experience that this is not looked upon positively

Who can use it

The mayor, decision-makers in the executive committee, education and upbringing committee, their advisers, or the administration.

What the tool can be used for

- Decision-makers can collect advice from young people who drive cars, scooters/mopeds, snowmobiles, quad bikes, and/or groups of young people that cruise. Young people who drive are invited to contribute advice and ideas for the best possible municipality for young people like them.
- Decision-makers can gain more understanding of why young people drive a lot, use cars, scooters/mopeds, quad bikes, or spend time in car parks or petrol stations. decision-makers can receive advice directly from them

Which children and young people can take part

Young people who enjoy driving/cruising

USER GUIDE

Places decision-makers can go to

Places where young people who drive often spend time, such as petrol stations, car parks, or other meeting places

How invitations can be made

- Directly to individuals who are part of these environments
- Posts on social media with information that decision-makers would like to meet young people who drive, possibly that the young people are invited to the town hall. It is important to clearly describe why the decision-makers want to meet young people who drive and what the answers will be used for
- It must be stated clearly that the media cannot attend, to make it feel safe

Examples of themes decision-makers can ask about

- The themes must be important for those who are going to make decisions and for young people who drive, for example:
 - What decision-makers can do to make the municipality feel like a good place for these young people
 - What is good about this environment and why young people choose to be part of it
 - How the municipality can facilitate for young people to do what they enjoy in a safe way, both for themselves and for others

How decision-makers can go out

- In small groups, in order to make it safe enough for the young people they meet
- Sit in a visible place so that young people can come over
- Go out several times to make it safer and show that they genuinely want to understand

How to carry out the meeting points

- Invite people to first get to know each other a bit, the decision-makers also talk a little about themselves
- Invite to conversations between one to two decision-makers and a few young people
- Invite young people to answer questions anonymously, on Kahoot/Mentimeter

The responsibility of the decision-makers after they have received advice and ideas

- Leave information on how the young people can get in touch if they have more to contribute or have questions
- Post on social media information about how the advice from the young people has been included
